

TORRID HEAT

Aids the Police in Preserving Peace at Chicago

Packers More Confident Think the Strike is Broken.

Unions Still Predict Victory Declaring Lost Ground Will be Regained Tomorrow--Conference of Leaders--Situation in Other Cities Remains Unchanged Today.

Chicago, July 19.—Torrid heat aids the police in preserving peace in the stock yards on the seventh day of the strike of 18,000 butchers and their helpers. Non-union negroes and Italians are being shipped into the yards hourly. But few police meet the strike breakers and they are allowed to walk to the packing houses unmolested while long lines of strikers watch them across a street that bakes and blisters under a glaring sun.

The packers this morning increased the number of killing beds in operation. Thirty butchers arrived from Philadelphia and began to instruct the inexperienced laborers. One giant negro was shown how to crush the skulls of cattle and within a few hours became so proficient that steer after steer fell before his sledge-hammer as fast as he could swing it. The large firms each expect to average 1,000 cattle and 2,000 hogs daily. The attitude of the packers has become more confident and less conciliatory. They believe they have broken the strike.

The unions are less confident but still predict victory.

Their leaders declare the ground seemingly lost to them will be regained tomorrow, when the firemen and all affiliated unions may join them. They say the teamsters and all other union men in the yards will go out when it becomes necessary, and if the strike can be won in no other way, the union railroad men throughout the country will refuse to handle any of the packers output.

A conference of the leaders is being held to adopt some plan to bring the strike to a crisis which will turn in their favor.

Arthur Meeker, general manager of Armour & Company's big plant, said this morning: "We are getting along finely without the unions. This is a big country and there is plenty of idle labor this year. Our plant is fairly well supplied with labor in every department. I think we have the situation well in hand."

Meeker refused to say what the answer of the packers would be if the unions requested another joint conference.

Several trains arrived at the stock yards during the morning bearing non-union workmen.

The Lake Shore took in a special train of two cars having on board 75 negroes and Hungarians. The strictest secrecy prevails with regard to the methods of recruiting the non-union men.

A Michigan Central train of two cars entered the yards at 10 o'clock. The blinds were all drawn and the platform was filled with policemen. The train stopped at intervals, on the inside of the yards and groups of men got off—four or five in number. It was said these men were intended for Nelson Morris & Co.

This morning's mail brought the packers a communication from the Stockmen's Association of Montana, offering to furnish 500 cowboy butchers. The letter read: "These men can take care of themselves. Shall we send them on?"

The offer will not be accepted.

It is believed that there are from 4,000 to 6,000 nonunion men now working in the packing houses.

Most of the nonunion workers sleep on cots in the packing houses and eat in roughly constructed restaurants on the grounds.

Swift & Co. declare 1,600 men are at work; Armour, 2,000; Nelson Morris & Co., 1,500.

Only six of these labor organizations have received the consent of the national bodies and without such consent no strike benefits will be provided if the local unions strike. In order to have a general tie up at the stock yards meetings of the national officials would have to be called and the matter gone over. This would take at least a week, perhaps longer. The six national organizations which have authorized strikes and which will pay strike benefits are the engineers, firemen, steam fitters, steam fitters' helpers, coopers and painters. These unions can strike at once.

Whether they will do so or not probably will be decided today for the strike crisis is at hand.

The labor leaders in charge of the strikers met this morning at the Sherman house to prepare an ultimatum to the packers.

The letter will be carefully worded with the purpose of bringing about another conference in case the packers are inclined to yield the only point now at issue—the reinstatement of all the strikers within a specified time.

President Donnelly has hopes that this concession may be made at the last moment, in order to avert the strike of the mechanical trades.

Should this final peace move fail the probabilities are that the six trades named will declare an immediate strike. President Donnelly has given a reluctant consent to such a move.

Meanwhile the situation at the stock yards is ominous. The striking butchers and laborers are becoming restless and this morning many threats were heard of violence.

UNCHANGED AT OMAHA.

Omaha, Neb., July 19.—The strike situation remains unchanged. Stock receipts are twice as heavy as any day since the strike began.

ST. PAUL CONDITIONS.

St. Paul, Minn., July 19.—More ominous conditions prevailed in the butchers' strike today than at any other stage. President Willis and Business Agent Steep were deposed from management of the strike for ordering the abandonment of the picket barricade late Monday afternoon after an interview the former had with Governor Van Sant. The strikers appointed a committee to take charge. The committee ordered the pickets back on duty. The pickets this morning resisted the police trying to force men through the lines. A fight followed, with no serious result. Mayor Lytle of South St. Paul, has ordered M. D. Flower, president of the Union Stock Yards Co., out of town, charging him with being an agitator. Flower refused to go. Lytle declares he will take no action against the strikers while Flower remains. Business Agent Steep says the officers of the union have lost control of the men.

AT KANSAS CITY.

Kansas City, Mo., July 19.—No trouble attended the opening of packing houses this morning. Thirty-seven expert butchers have arrived from southwestern Missouri country towns.

PRICES GO HIGHER.

Chicago, July 19.—Prices of meat went up several notches again today in consequence of the failure of the striking butchers and the packers to come to terms of settlement of the strike.

Customers in all the first-class restaurants will feel the effect of the butchers strike today. Prices on all meat orders will be advanced 12 1-2 per cent and there will be a sympathetic rise in the table prices of vegetables and poultry.

BOYS BRIGADE

Leaves for Buckeye Lake to Enjoy Ten Days in Camp—About 60 Boys in the Party.

The Second Battalion of the Fourth Ohio Regiment, Boys' Brigade, under command of Rev. J. C. Schindel and Major R. E. Morrow, left on a special car Tuesday for a week's encampment at Buckeye Lake. The members of the battalion were fully equipped with camping outfit. The boys will enjoy life for ten days, pitching their camp near the observatory at Buckeye Lake.

The 60 boys made a fine appearance as they marched down Main street to the station.

PARTY LEADERS IN NEW YORK CITY

Decide Not to Interfere in Naming Chairman.

Interests of Party Best Conserved By Letting the Democratic Committee Select Its Own Chairman.

New York, July 19.—Leaders of the Democratic party conferred for more than two hours last night in the rooms of former Senator D. B. Hill at the Hoffman house, and at the close made a public statement to the effect that the chairmanship of the national committee had not been discussed.

Privately it was said that the judgment of all present was that the interests of the party would be best conserved by leaving the committee absolutely free to elect its chairman. Judge Parker was said to favor this course.

The conference resulted in an agreement to call a meeting of the national committee to be held at the Hoffman house on July 26.

The question of fixing the time and place for the notification of the candidates for president and vice president was left to candidates themselves.

Present at the conference were the leaders who brought about the nomination of Judge Parker. There was also present Senator Victor J. Dowling of New York, who looked after the Jammany interests. Everyone declared that harmony had been the watchword throughout.

The conferees were former Senators D. B. Hill of New York, James Smith, Jr., of New Jersey, Henry G. Davis of West Virginia, candidate for vice president; Edward Murphy, Jr., of New York, Senator Gorman of Maryland, William F. Sheehan of New York, Cord Meyer, chairman of the New York state committee; John W. Kern of Indiana, Colonel James M. Guile of Pennsylvania, Senator P. H. McCarran of Brooklyn, James M. Mead, of Tennessee, Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, Perry Belmont and August Belmont of New York, Thomas F. Ryan of Virginia, Senator J. K. P. Hall of Pennsylvania and John R. McLean of Ohio.

Mr. Davis engaged in the discussion of all topics before the conference. His most significant statement was in relation to the uniting of all interests. The gathering of so many strong men representing the factions which had not always pulled together, he said, was indicative of a strong campaign.

SHOT

Young Wife Three Times and Then Himself--Cause Jealousy.

Youngstown, O., July 19.—While at breakfast this morning Chas. Livingston, a railroader, became enraged at his young wife and shot her three times. He then shot himself, dying instantly, his wife being removed to a hospital, but she cannot survive. They had been married four months. Jealousy was the cause of the tragedy.

STORM AT ROSEVILLE.

Roseville, July 19.—About 30 shade trees and the chimneys of several houses were blown down yesterday afternoon during a storm here. One particular feature is that a mile on the other side of Roseville there was no rain.

A PRISONER KILLED.

Columbus, O., July 19.—Philip J. Goss, military prisoner at the Columbus barracks, was shot by a guard while making a dash to escape, dying shortly afterward.

SERIOUSLY INJURED

Were Several People in a Collision of Two Buggies Near Summit Station.

Summit Station, O., July 18.—A serious accident occurred on the Columbus road Saturday, when Don Moreland, who was driving at a rapid rate collided with the buggy of William Vanatta, on the bridge near Clem Ward's. The buggy containing Mr. Moreland and Claud Blainey upset.

Mr. Blainey fell under the horse and is thought to be injured internally, besides sustaining a broken rib. Mrs. Blainey was badly bruised about the shoulder but the baby was not even awakened. The horse ran away, tearing the buggy to pieces, while Mr. Vanatta and the members of his family, received slight injuries and their buggy was badly wrecked.

The Jones reunion will be held in Alonzo Moreland's sugar grove, August 10, 1904. Plenty of instrumental and vocal music will help to enliven the occasion.

J. D. Holcomb and family had for their guests on Sunday, Mr. G. W. Holcomb, Frank Strait and family of Taylorstown, Steward McNaughton and family of Reynoldsburg.

S. B. Beese and family spent Sunday with Mr. Beese's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beese of Columbia Center.

INCREASE

IN THE RURAL MAIL CARRIERS SALARY IS ALLOWED

Amounts the Nine Newark R. F. D. Carriers Will Receive Beginning July First Here Given.

The nine rural free delivery mail carriers delivering mail from the Newark postoffice will receive a substantial increase in their salaries to be dated July 1, 1904. This information has been received by Postmaster J. M. Ickes from J. L. Bristow, fourth assistant postmaster general at Washington, D. C. The salary to be received by each of the nine carriers will be as follows:

1. James M. Lake$684
2. Sylvanus Jones 648
3. Benjamin S. Marshall 702
4. George N. Dodson 720
5. Henry O. Dorsey 684
6. Clyde W. Irwin 684
7. John F. Holler 702
8. Wm. H. Richards 702
9. John I. Smith 702

It will be noticed by the above that but one carrier, George N. Dodson, receives the full increase of $120 as promised immediately after the passing of the late act by the national congress. It will be recalled that first orders promised this raise to each carrier. Word was received, however, that only carriers covering routes of 24 miles or more in length would receive this full increase in salary. It is thought that another increase in the salary of the rural mail carriers will be made in the near future.

RECORD

OF THE MARRIAGES, BIRTHS AND DEATHS

Interesting Statistics of Year Compiled in the Office of the Probate Judge.

According to statistics compiled by Probate Judge W. A. Irvine, the following births and deaths are reported for the year ending March 31, 1904:

Deaths—406. Of these 220 were white males and 183 white females. There was one colored female and two unknown.

Births—721. Of these 789 were white, there being 460 males and 339 females, and two colored males.

During the same time 531 marriage licenses were issued.

Licenses were issued for the following parties, but if they were married the officiating clergyman failed to make his return: John Lewis Thompson and May Carpenter, Albert Norman and Eda Ryan; William L. Griffith and Anna Early, Charles C. Elliott and Nettie Dixon.

Two licenses were issued that were never used.

Fifty letters of guardianship were issued, including 75 minors, 4 insane and 1 imbecile. Eighty-two wills were probated, 57 letters testamentary issued and 54 letters of administration.

UNEASY FEELING

Which is Mirrored Today in The Stock Exchange.

Will England and Germany Adopt Stringent Measures?

First European Complication Growing Out of the Far East War--Japanese Victory in Which Russia Loses 2000 Men--Mallasca Carries Czar's Flag.

London, July 19.—There is a well defined feeling in all quarters this morning that the seizure of the British and German steamers by Russian volunteer cruisers marks the first European complication resultant upon the Russo-Japanese war. How extensive this complication will prove to be time and future events alone can determine, but at present the feeling of uneasiness has become a fear that the end of the matter will not be reached before England and perhaps Germany are forced to take stringent measures to bring Russia to terms in the matter. This feeling was mirrored today on the stock exchange.

This feeling of uneasiness and fear was accentuated today by the action of the British admiralty which has ordered the Mediterranean squadron to leave Malta and pass immediately to Alexandria, which is close to the mouth of the Suez canal and has further directed two fast cruisers to proceed to the Suez canal and take station in the Red Sea.

There are many who believe the government intends to make a most careful investigation of the seizures by Russian vessels and finding Russia guilty of a breach of an international law will make demands which will amply indemnify England for the damage done.

More conservative circles do not believe that action by England and Germany will go beyond the protest stage, although they admit that further interference with shipping may force more stringent measures.

JAPANESE VICTORY.

London, July 19.—A dispatch from Gen. Kuroki's headquarters dated today, states that the Russian loss in the fight at Motien Ling is now computed at 2,000. The Japanese total losses will not exceed 500. The Japanese infantry demonstrated again their remarkable efficiency in initiative and showed conclusively that they are infinitely better marksmen than the Russians. For hours they out-fought their enemies and the Russians were outnumbered at every point.

CARRIES RUSSIAN FLAG.

Suez, July 15.—The P. & O. steamship Mallasca, which was seized in the Red Sea by the Russian volunteer cruiser Petersburg, last week, has arrived here flying the Russian flag and commanded by Russian officers and run by a Russian crew. The British company's agent was refused admittance aboard the vessel.

WILL RUSSIA SUBSIDIE?

Berlin, July 19.—England has informed Germany of the dispatch of an English fleet of 18 war ships to Alexandria with the intention of checking Russian illegalities in the Red Sea. It is expected this demonstration will cause Russia to subsidize immediately. The general feeling here is that the first European complication growing out of the far East war has arrived.

TWO MORE GO THROUGH.

Constantinople, July 19.—The porte has authorized two additional Russian volunteer cruisers to pass through the Dardanelles.

A young Philadelphian with a fad has had his photograph taken more than 100 times in ten years.

There are 55 counties and only one city in continental United States in which at least 75 per cent of the population is negro.

MRS. NELSON A. MILES.

Mrs. Miles is not so well known as her husband, Lieutenant General Miles, retired. She is a daughter of the late Judge Sherman of Ohio, who was a brother of John and General William T. Sherman. Her sister married ex-Senator Don Cameron of Pennsylvania.

VICE ADMIRAL KAMIMURA.

The successful raids of Russia's Vladivostok squadron have caused much trouble at home for Vice Admiral Kamimura, the Japanese commander. "If Kamimura cannot catch the Russian fleet he ought to resign or commit suicide," say the Japanese. Kamimura was one of the heroes of the battle of the Yalu during the Chino-Japanese war.

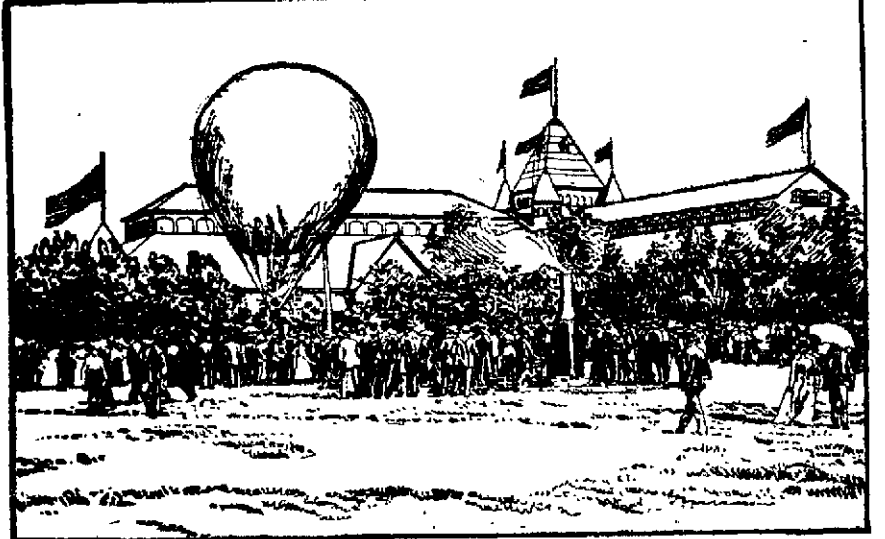

PREPARATIONS COMPLETE FOR THE OHIO STATE FAIR

TO BE HELD AT COLUMBUS AUG. 29, 30, 31, SEPT. 1, 2.

Exhibits Are Assured For a Great Industrial Exposition, Spread Out In the Fifteen Large Buildings, Equipped For Each Department and Every Class.

The Beautiful Grounds a Delight to the Eye and a Popular Pleasure Resort
For All—The Conveniences of the Fair Greater Than Ever and the Attractions Unlimited—The People of Ohio Looking Forward to the Great Event and Other States Will Be Interested and Are Sure to be Attracted.

The rapid growth and successful annual exhibitions of the Ohio State Fair, especially the past few years; the broadening of its general scope and the good results following the lessons of annual exhibition, are well known by all the people of the State and quite generally known and acknowledged throughout the United States. The reputation of the Ohio State Fair as a great industrial exposition is so firmly established that producers, manufacturers and dealers of the best and latest in every class seek the advantages to be gained by exhibiting at the Fair, and each succeeding year many new names, new firms and new establishments are added to the extensive list of exhibitors. In consequence of the constantly increasing interest and demand on the part of exhibitors, the facilities of the Fair have been more than doubled within the past few years, notwithstanding which, enlargements and additions are required each year to meet the urgent demands pressed upon the Fair management. The Ohio State Fair grounds are beautiful and attractive in every respect; a delightful park resort, supplied with every convenience possible to be provided for public comfort and recreational pleasure. Unlike new grounds, for new or temporary expositions, there is nothing incomplete or in a chaotic state. The lawns are old and well set; trees are of great growth and line the various avenues, furnishing an abundance of shade between the points of interest and leading to the numerous great exposition buildings and departments of the Fair. Shaded reserves are also in abundance and sweet smelling flowering shrubbery dot the banks, islands and projections of attractive lakes and fancy water courses. No city park or established pleasure resort is more inviting than the Ohio State Fair ground park at Columbus. The highest development has been attained and is maintained in all the beauty that nature and art afford. As to exhibition building capacity, no comparison can be drawn with any other fair. The Ohio State Fair grounds are provided with a greater number, a finer style of architecture and a larger capacity than are to be found on any other grounds for like purposes. The excellent exhibition conveniences for each of the fifteen distinct departments of the Fair, enables exhibitors to display their products and manufactures in correctly classified form and to the best possible advantage for public inspection, thus deriving all the benefits and profits for which the exhibits are made, while the great lessons of the Fair are presented to the public in a manner not merely attractive and pleasing to the eye, but instructive in every detail; lessons that are carried broadcast, resulting in a better class of animals; the use of the latest and most economical machinery; better methods in the production of field, garden and orchard crops; higher art; greater household conveniences and hundreds

OPEN AIR LIVING. THE WILDING INSTINCTS OF THE RACE SATISFIED IN EASY WAYS.

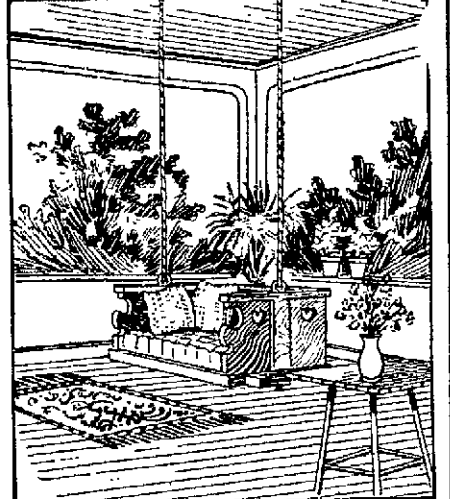

Out of Door Rooms a Center of Social Life For the Family in Summer. Delightful Breakfasts Under One's Vine and Fig Tree.

Modern architecture does certainly labor to satisfy the wilding instincts of the race. Verandas widen our houses on all four sides; verandas roofed to shield us from the inclemencies of the weather, but with sides open to the breeze and view. Others are roofed by the sky alone—broad platforms upon which to enjoy unobscured sunlight and starlight. Small balconies make out of door breathing room for the occasional bedchamber, and the vine draped pergola and latticed summer house still further extend our liberties.

These open air rooms are coming more and more to be the places where the family and social life of the summer center, and their equipment with necessities and comforts a matter to pique the invention of the designer and the home maker, says a writer in the New Idea Magazine in preface to the following suggestions about their fitting up and use:

Bamboo, wicker and rattan chairs, such as are imported by the Chinese, Japanese and East Indian houses, and the silver birch and other rustic furniture from the Adirondacks, are found to be most serviceable and appropriate for veranda use. The raffia chairs and tables are pretty and are particularly popular just now, since the fancy for baskets in all its branches has become so general.

If the porch is to be furnished complete it is best, first of all, to decide upon a plan of color and the style of furnishings appropriate to the house. Wicker and bamboo, for instance, are more appropriate for the veranda of a house strictly colonial in architecture than rustic chairs and tables, and green, white or uncolored rattan than the more vivid colors that might be used against a background of stone or stained wood such as a Queen Anne cottage would have.

The question of lighting is somewhat troublesome unless the house is wired for electricity, and it generally is not. No one, of course, cares to spend a summer evening on a brilliantly lighted veranda, but a large majority of people would prefer a mild illumination, light just sufficient to keep them from wrecking their shins on the vicious edges of ambushed chairs in their murky progress from one point to another. One, two or more soft lights—bushes suspended in Japanese paper lanterns or the more substantial over delicately painted glass—are as pretty as possible. If gas or oil is used the flame must be sheltered by glass shades or screens in deep, soft colors.

But the daytime uses of the veranda are those of paramount importance. Here in the green shade of his own vine and fig tree the head of the house may cut the matutinal melon and partake of it with the zest that is the grace to any meal eaten out of doors. Coffee seems more fragrant delicious, whether it really is or not, and the seeming is sufficient to stir the languid appetite.

Accumulate a little store of veranda table linen in gay colors. Keep the table service and accessories as different as possible from the conventional charm of indoor life, no matter to what point of perfection your pride and affection have brought it. A breakfast table spread with buff colored linen and laid with the gay, inexpensive crockery, a brass kettle purring merrily at one end and a small brass egg boiler at the other, the radishes in a small dish shaped like a lettuce leaf.

A FIVE O'CLOCK TEA CORNER.

make the Ohio State Fair, in every respect, a first class industrial exposition, worthy the patronage of all Ohio citizens, and that shall attract citizens from our sister states to join with us in viewing the illustrations of progress, as will be so grandly presented in the many departments, and to admire the beauty of the grounds and enjoy the many features and attractions that will be provided for each day of the Fair.

It is advised that the people prepare for this great and important event. The time and small outlay of money required to spend a day or more at the Fair can not be spent in any other manner that will bring greater returns in profit, enlightenment, pleasure and needed recreation. The forthcoming Ohio State Fair will assume the prominence of a great industrial exposition, representing more particularly the Buckeye State and her varied industries.

SELECTIONS ... An Ideal

[Original.]

TWO POPULAR MEN.

But Joe Cannon is More Beautiful Than John Sharp Williams.

Every member on both sides of the house likes John Williams. To analyze his popularity is not so easy. But it can be safely said that it is not his beauty which first attracts one, for his pulchritude is of the singed cat variety. Indeed I do not think him so beautiful as Uncle Joe. On this point there would hardly be enough dissenters in the house to demand the yeas and nays. Uncle Joe has a ruddy complexion that matches well with pink carnations, now universally recognized as the insignia of Republican leadership. John is somewhat swarthy and has a sort of compromise complexion, but it is healthy and natural. He has never used any skin food or done any grafting. Uncle Joe has also a sort of cocky look, as if he knew he would get his way all in before it rained, putting his thumbs in the armpits of his vest and oftentimes tipping his cigar up a few degrees from the plane of his orbit just to emphasize the security of American institutions.

John has a fiercer mien, is somewhat more combative in appearance, holds one hand to his ear (for he is slightly deaf), and in the heat of debate his hair seems to rise up and cry for liberty. He has a sort of lean and hungry look, as if it were always just before dinner, while Uncle Joe wears on all occasions a postprandial aspect, suggestive of that peace and plenty which comforts well with certain planks in his party platform. John misses tobacco a little now and then, and Uncle Joe has been known to use cigar ashes to keep the moths out of his clothes. There are, in truth, some points about these two men as like as their family hailing ports in old Carolina. And, though fastidious critics may assert that the line of beauty never touched either one of them, still they both look good to me.—J. Adam Bede in Leslie's Monthly.

An Adaptable Soldier.

One of the reasons why the Russians have found it so easy to assimilate the races of central Asia and to make themselves at home in Manchuria, says World's Work, is that the Russian soldier is quite the most adaptable chap in the world.

Although he is undoubtedly brutal and has a tendency while under arms to commit massacres like that at Blagovestchensk, in which thousands of defenseless Chinese neutrals—men, women and children—were slaughtered during the Boxer campaign, he is nevertheless a good fellow who gets along admirably with the people among whom he is campaigning or is quartered. If he does not kill his enemy he makes a friend of him by his rough comradeship and overflowing good nature.

He is a peasant—just a common, country loving, home loving sort of a chap—used to doing anything and everything about the home. So when he is quartered in a house he promptly makes himself at home and finds all sorts of tasks to do. He minds the baby, washes the dishes, fetches fuel and gives the housewife a lift at whatever she has on hand.

Water Frozen and Stored.

A traveling man recently returned from a trip through Montana tells of a curious method he saw there for storing water needed for irrigating purposes. This consists of nothing more or less than freezing the water until it is wanted.

As soon as the weather becomes such as to melt this ice it is fit for the operations requiring the water. The plan, which so far is in the nature of an experiment, consists of making a series of shallow basins on the slope of a hill in such locations that when water is plentiful they may be filled, each of those below the highest receiving successively the overflow from the one above.

Once frozen, the ice in the shallow reservoirs is there until the thaw sets in, when it melts so slowly as to keep up a supply of moisture sufficient for the germination and growth of the early crops. This unique method has been tried so far only in the vicinity of Dillon, but it appears to be successful and is to be given a trial in several other favorable localities.—Philadelphia Record.

Queer Old Time Railroad Pass.

Colonel William Morris of Huntingdon enjoys the rare distinction of traveling on a Pennsylvania railroad pass issued in 1830, which is without limit. This pass is a curiosity, having on it in addition to the necessary wording the picture of an engine and two cars, which are unique, as might be imagined. The engine is anything but modern, and the coaches have the old time "possum belly" in which baggage was carried. The colonel retains this pass because he was one of the original stockholders of the company.—Tyrone (Pa.) Herald.

Electric Fans.

Persons who are sensitive to drafts should not sit in a strong breeze generated by an electric fan. One good way to derive comfort from these useful contrivances without permitting the waves of air to beat directly against the body is to turn the fan toward the wall, from which they will rebound. An agreeable change in the atmosphere of the room will be felt without the strong wind continually blowing on one's back.

What Came of ... An Ideal

There was once an artist who achieved great fame in the painting of one picture. He never painted another that came anywhere near equalling it, but his masterpiece alone was enough to make his fortune.

While struggling for recognition he fell in love with and married a young girl—Helena was her name—who to him was perfection. It is well known that lovers endow the objects of their love with every attraction, and this man endowed his wife especially with great beauty. He painted a picture of her not as his imagination saw her, but as she was, and when the picture was completed he supplied its beauty from his imagination, just as he had done in the case of the original.

Soon after the completion of the portrait Helena sickened and died. The husband was inconsolable. He would sit all day looking at the portrait, which to him was even more beautiful than it was when he painted it. A whole year passed, and he had done nothing but mourn. He was so poor that his clothes were rags, and he had nothing to eat except dry bread. Then one day upon learning that there was to be a competition for an altar piece for a cathedral, a Madonna and child, he roused himself to an effort to win the prize. The winning picture must be a wonder, and three years were given in which to produce it.

The artist knew that the first thing for him to do was to find a model. It was the spring of the year, and he sallied forth into the country, thinking to discover among the dairymaids or shepherdesses what he desired, for it was from the simpler classes that the mother of Jesus came. The pleasant air and sunshine brightened the spirit within him, and he became interested in his search. He visited many young women, but found none that he thought would do for a divine model. His ideal was the face of his lost wife, and one may look a long while without finding an ideal of anything.

One morning he passed a dairy farm, and, going back to the cow sheds, a girl arose from milking and greeted him with a very pleasant smile—a smile of pity, for the man was in tatters and looked hungry. She offered him a cup of milk fresh from the cow and then took him into the neat farmhouse and gave him a good meal. When the farmer and his wife came in they gave him a hearty shake of the hand and approved of what their daughter Cecilia had done.

The artist stayed at the farm several days. Indeed, they would not let him go till he had gained strength to travel. During these few days it was growing upon him that the face of Cecilia was especially suited for the mother of one who, though divine, was born in a manger.

The artist confessed his profession and told the farmer of his object. The man was so pleased that his daughter should sit for a picture of the Virgin that he consented to take her to the artist's studio himself.

For months the picture of the Madonna was growing on the canvas. Unconsciously the painter, though he followed Cecilia's features and outline, put in the expression with which his imagination had endowed his lost wife. The picture therefore became a thing of heavenly beauty. But the artist could find no child that would do for a model of the infant Saviour. He had sketched a child's outline in the picture, hoping every day to come upon the model he wanted. The babe should resemble his mother, and no babe could be found with the features of Cecilia.

By this time the artist had become engrossed in his work. Gradually his imaginary conception of his wife's beauty was transferred to the model and through her to the canvas, though of this he was unconscious. Then one day it occurred to him to marry Cecilia, and perhaps they would have a child that would do for the model infant Jesus. Her father consented, and the marriage took place.

After his marriage the artist left her picture as it was, hoping for a child from which he might fill in the child in the picture. A little son came to him, and when it was about fifteen months old he transferred the image to the canvas. The Madonna was a wonder; the child had inherited her features, and her father adored him. When the picture was finished the few who were permitted to see it were struck dumb with admiration. But one thing puzzled the artist. No one saw any likeness between the Madonna and Cecilia.

It was a happy morning for the artist and his family when the award was announced and he was found to be the winner. The prize was enough to keep them very modestly, and they not only enjoyed a competence, but the fame the father and husband had won. He tried often again to do such work, but never succeeded. However, his name on a picture was ever after sufficient to insure its sale for a large sum.

One day several years after the winning of the prize the artist went up into his garret to hunt for a frame he hoped might be there. His old pictures were scattered about, mostly daubs of his student days. There was one picture, the portrait of a woman, that he could not remember ever having painted. He took it up and held it to the light. The face was a very common-place one. He tried to remember what model he could have used in its painting. Suddenly the truth flashed upon him. It was the picture he had made of Helena. F. A. MITCHEL.

SHORT STORIES.

Greenland has about 12,000 inhabitants. The largest two villages have only 382 and 333 inhabitants.

The Thomas A. Hendricks Library at Hanover, Ind., the gift of the statesman's widow, was dedicated recently.

William Lloyd Garrison's old home, Rockledge, in Roxbury, Mass., is to be used by St. Monica's home as a refuge for sick and infirm colored women and children.

The town of Eliot, N. H., has a check list which for names is a curiosity. Out of 425 names there are 29 Spinnys, 24 Staples and 16 each of the Coles and Goodwins.

A perfume which the wife of a Chicago millionaire has had distilled from a species of water lily is said to be worth $125 a drop. It takes thousands of blossoms to fill a small vial with the essence.

Columbia county, Wash., is one of the greatest barley producing sections of the northwest. No rainfall is had from June until after harvest, and the grain is ripened and harvested without moisture.

The process of making carbon paper and typewriter ribbon has never been patented and is known to scarcely two dozen people in the world. It is a trade secret which has been handed down from father to son for about a century.

FACTS FROM FRANCE.

A society has been founded in Paris for the prehistoric study of France.

Fifty years' imprisonment was the sentence recently given a seventeen-year-old Lyons footpad.

In Marseilles the law does not permit buildings exceeding eighty-one feet three inches in height.

The Paris courts have decided that a doctor who makes use of clairvoyants to diagnose and prescribe for the maladies of his patients is guilty of illegal practice.

From a report published by the French minister of finance it appears that the increase of music halls in Paris is seriously threatening the existence of many theaters.

Having wagered $40 that he would steal five medals from a policeman's chest, a young man in Paris secured two, but was caught at the third attempt and will be prosecuted.

The temperance congress recently held in Paris has shown that the temperance cause is making great progress throughout France. The consumption of alcohol is at a standstill. It has ceased to increase, though there is still no perceptible decrease.

At Buckeye Lake.
The members of the Sunday school of the First M. E. church of this city, are enjoying a delightful outing and picnic at Buckeye Lake today. Several hundred people are in attendance.

Song and Praise Service.
A song and praise social will be given tonight on the grounds near the Pine Street church. After a short song and praise service ice cream and cake will be served. Miss Dillon will sing.

Plymouth Congregational.
The presence of every member and adherent is needed at the meeting of the church Wednesday evening. The finance committee is ready to lay plans before the church. Be present and bring others; bring enthusiasm. The meeting opens at 7:30.

Off For Brevort Lake.
A number of the members of the Buckeye Fishing club of Newark, left this morning for Brevort Lake, Northern Michigan, on a fishing trip. Included in the party were Messrs. Jos. Kuster, Edward Schaller, E. J. Maurath, Frank Showman, Frank Simonds, Harry Miller, James Dolan and Adam Trotman.

W. C. T. U. Ladies at Infirmary.
The ladies of the W. C. T. U. of Granville, visited the county infirmary last Friday and presented each of the inmates with a beautiful bouquet. The ladies were shown the buildings by the matron of the institution, Mrs. Harter, and sang songs to the sick and visited every sick room. The inmates greatly enjoyed the visit of the kind ladies. All appreciated the flowers and wish them success in all their endeavors.

Gypsies at Newark.
Saturday evening the band of gypsies, or rather itinerant junk dealers, whom Jacob Marshall, another gypsy, charged with keeping his nine-year-old child, Bessie, for the last two years, left their camp at South Zanesville and started for Newark, it is said. Marshall and his family also left supposedly going with them. He will return to Circleville and recover his child, who is being cared for there by a policeman—Zanesville Signal.

Camels Meeting.
The weekly meeting of the Monarch Lodge No. 66, M. O. C., will be held earlier this evening than usual. The meeting will take place at 7 o'clock and will be of considerable importance. The proposed trip to Mansfield to institute the lodge there will be discussed. The date of the institution has been changed from Thursday evening this week to Monday evening of next week. A number of local Camels will go to Coshocton this evening to assist in the work of instituting the new lodge there.

Miss Gladys Hilliard.
Newark of late seems to have developed into quite a musical center. Among the most recent competitors for honors in the realm of music is Miss Gladys Hilliard, daughter of Col. and Mrs. J. V. Hilliard. It has been known for some time that Miss Hilliard possessed musical talent of a very high order, as has been verified on more than one occasion. She has just returned from the Conservatory of Music at Philadelphia, where she has spent the last year. This is one of the leading schools in the country. Miss Hilliard displays voice culture of a very high degree of excellence. It has come as well as sweetness, and the training which she has been undergoing during the past year has greatly improved it in every particular. Miss Hilliard's many Newark friends extended hearty congratulations and wished her success in her efforts to stand in the front rank in the realm of music.

Coroner's Verdict.
Coroner C. F. Legge has made public his finding in the case of Mrs. C. W. Sterett, whose death was the cause of her husband's arrest. The coroner mentions cirrhosis of the liver as the cause of death.

A Forgery Charge.
Harry Toothaker was arrested by B. & O. Officer Bennett on information from Connelville, Pa. He was locked up there on a forgery charge and some time ago broke jail and came to Newark where he was employed as head grease wiper at the B. & O. shops at night.

SHOWING THE WAY.
This Public Statement of a Newark Citizen Will Be Appreciated.

Many a reader of this in Newark has gone through the self-same experience in part, and will be glad to be shown the way to get rid of the constant aches and pains of a bad back. Profit by a Newark citizen's experience. T. Henderson, of 489 Baltimore street, says: "I can only say that after giving Doan's Kidney Pills a trial, they showed themselves to be all that was claimed for them. I had a good deal of pain over my kidneys. If I contracted a cold, no matter how slight, it always affected them first, and as a result my back grew worse being frequently so painful that it was more than I could do sometimes to straighten up. The urine was of a bad odor and color—evidence that the kidneys were not altogether right. After I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills at Crayton's drug store all this trouble was corrected. The kidneys passed away the impurities and my back was strong and free from pain."

Duty of Democrats.

The Springfield Republican, one of the leading independent newspapers of the country, discusses the issues of the campaign and especially the personality of the presidential candidates with great earnestness. That paper argues that "it would be a National calamity" should the war-seeking and trouble-getting Roosevelt be elected by a majority that would encourage him in his dangerous and perilous policies and un-American boasts. For this reason the Republican talks plainly and earnestly on the duty of Democrats in this campaign, and says:

"Democrats, for this campaign at least, should declare a truce upon their internecine warfare and face the common enemy. There isn't a radical Democrat in the country who cannot support the Parker ticket on the grounds which Mr. Bryan has found to justify his own purpose to vote for it. There isn't a conservative Democrat who cannot support it on the grounds which make it so satisfactory to Mr. Cleveland. Mr. Bryan declares a truce until after election day; let the truce idea spread over the land and there will be an opposition on November 8 worthy of the name, and one that will at least sober the party in control of government and its young leader."

Senator Platt of New York admits that the Republicans will have a hard fight to carry that State, and that they are under the necessity of nominating a strong State ticket to give them any hope of victory. When Senator Platt admits this he in fact affords the most substantial encouragement to the Democrats in that State and in the Nation.

Hood's Pills

MR. BRYAN'S SECOND THOUGHTS

(Pittsburg Post)

Mr. Bryan appears to better advantage, at least to Democrats, in his moderate second thoughts of the Democratic platform, especially when they are studied with his emphatic declaration that he "will vote for Parker and Davis the nominees of the Democratic National convention," and presents "long arguments and reasons for doing." In a certain sense that is conclusive, and Mr. Bryan could not well have done otherwise, for all his political life he has been a champion of the right and power of the majority to determine nominations and elections. It is the bedrock of Democratic principles and policies; and it could not have been more strongly affirmed than in the nomination of Parker and Davis, and in the adoption of the St. Louis platform, with the construction placed upon it by Judge Parker. In both cases this was achieved substantially by a unanimous vote.

Mr. Bryan, with his record as to the binding force of party nominations secured and maintained by such positive and unquestioned unanimity, could not well have done otherwise. It matters little what academic or sentimental views he and many thousands of others maintain as to the currency question and the future possibilities of silver in the currency conditions of the country. It is no longer in issue as a possible question on which to divide people or parties. No one can tell what may take place in ten or fifty years. It will be with the American people to determine. The present is settled beyond doubt or question as effectually as the problems of secession and slavery were determined by the arbitration of civil war. It is the improbable of possible events that the standard of values, as relates to gold and silver, will again come in issue before the American people as in 1896 and 1900. This is one of the things that can be safely forecasted. There will be no revolution backward.

And it will also add to the better judgment and confidence of the Democracy in Mr. Bryan that in addition to his clear and unequivocal endorsement of the St. Louis nominees he takes a more reasonable and accurate view of the platform of the party. It would have added nothing to this had he rejected his well known declaration and beliefs with the not unusual fervor of a new convert. He is not that "kind of man," as the people have found out in the last fifteen years. He asserts his rights of individual belief in the right or wrong of abstract questions. No one can find fault with that. But when it resolves itself into matter of action and "doing things" he accepts the declarations of the Democratic party as conclusive.

His later interpretations of the Democratic platform are more kindly and generous, in making allowance for the beliefs of others, than in his earlier or more heated declarations. The statement he authorized at Lincoln on Thursday relating to the Democratic platform leaves little to be questioned by the most eager and enthusiastic "silver men." The Democratic declarations on imperialism, on the tariff, and especially as to the anti-trust plank, he commends, as well as the labor plank and against a great standing army. He objects that it makes no mention of the money question, but that it is precisely what it does when Judge Parker's telegram to the convention is considered, and it is certainly a most distinguished part of the platform, and one peculiarly distinguished by special and unanimous approval, affirming Judge Parker's declaration maintaining the gold standard "as firmly and irreversibly established." That ended the battle of the standards in the United States, not as many people hoped it would end four or eight years ago, but ended it by the courageous action of their candidate for President, as affirmed and declared by the practically unanimous vote of the Democratic National convention.

We believe as the weeks go by William J. Bryan will be found giving his voice and pen with all the splendor and power of his magnificent eloquence and great influence with the voting masses to promote and make certain the election of Parker and Davis. We sincerely desire that he should do so for we recognize in its full extent the power of the man, his independence and his courage. Since 1894 and 1900 The Post has modified and amended its views on the question of silver coinage. They are now more in accord with those of the people of the United States—which even Major McKinley doubted in the early days of 1896, when he assailed the gold standard doctrines and policies of President Cleveland.

Alton Brooks Parker

Career of the Democratic Candidate for President.
Born on a Farm and a Farmer—Judge Still—A Good Tenor Singer and a Wise and Learned Judge—His Early Struggles

ALTON BROOKS PARKER, the Democratic candidate for President, is fifty-two years old, six years older than Theodore Roosevelt and nearly ten years older than was his rival when he assumed the presidential authority.

He is just a little under six feet in height.

He is broad shouldered, deep chested and weighs 186 pounds.

His cheeks are ruddy, and his hazel brown eyes sparkle with the glow of health.

His hair, which is thin on the top and sprinkled with gray on his sides, is of an unusual but attractive shade of red, characteristic of other members of the Parker family.

His mustache, which is usually worn close trimmed, is a shade darker than his hair.

Like President Roosevelt, he is an orops, the cattle, sheep, pigs, chickens, turkeys or ducks. Whether in the peach or apple orchard, in the cow pasture, barn or sty, he is the master of all in knowledge as well as in energy. He will pay his pickfork or put his shoulder under a heavy load with the best of them, and it is a good man who can keep up with him. He drives his family to the church of his son-in-law, Rev. Charles Mercer Hall, at Kingston, every Sunday and sings so heartily that strangers in the congregation are apt to turn their heads. Nor does he forget to have his domestic servants who are Roman Catholics driven to their own church regularly.

The judge is a vestryman in the Kingston church, and, although a man of very moderate means, he is probably the wealthiest man in the congregation. He is the practical pillar

"out of doors" man. He keeps his muscles hard and his mind clear and keen by much exercise in the open air, horse-back riding, driving and walking and farm work.

He is alert and energetic in his appearance, movement and speech. His manner in association with friends is affable and kindly and without the self assertiveness of the judge.

His conversational habit is to be direct and frank and scrupulously careful in his choice of expressions. Usually when his opinion is asked on any subject his reply is instantly ready.

Judge Parker is one of the best examples of a self made man in the United States today. Born poor, he has built up a small fortune that amply provides for his needs, and above that he appears to have no further ambition in a monetary way. His three farms, one at Cortland, another at Accord and the third at Esopus, complete his land possessions, and in all his wealth is estimated at not more than $30,000.

Saving and good judgment have brought to him what he has and not any stroke of good fortune.

Rosemont, the judge's house at Esopus, is a modest but comfortable wooden structure, standing on the stone foundations of a Dutch house of colonial times. It is set on the side of a hill among shade trees and fronts the river. It is the abode of hospitality and refinement, the typical home of an American gentleman. The picture of the church and takes an active interest in its charities, its cooking and sewing and dancing schools, its physical culture class and its basket ball games for boys. He is also a contributor to the funds of the local orphan asylum and is one of the managers of the Kingston City hospital.

His neighborly usefulness is to be seen on all sides. He is even the freight agent of a steamboat company, so that the little private dock on his farm may be used for the convenience of the community.

He is a confirmed magazine reader. He seldom reads poetry, but is fond of good novels. Mrs. Parker is always on the alert for a new story for her hard-working husband. But his natural taste is for Dickens, Thackeray and Scott. He delights in the vigorous out of door atmosphere of "The Scottish Chiefs." Jefferson is his favorite political writer. Any book or article on agriculture or cattle breeding is sure to interest him.

After he has spent a morning working on his judicial opinions—hours of grave concentration, when no one is permitted to interrupt his quiet—and when he is waiting for lunch his secretary, Arthur McCausland, will sit at the piano while the judge in a sweet tenor voice sings old fashioned ballads or hymns, "I Feel Just as Young as I Used to Be," "Only an Armor Bearer," "Hold the Fort," and so on.

Judge Parker was born May 14, 1852, at Cortland, N. Y., and was the son of a farmer. Two hundred years ago his ancestors had come from England and settled in New England. From generation to generation they were of the hardy farmer class, and they drew their love of country from the soil to which they had been transplanted. Judge Parker's great-grandfather was a soldier in the ranks of Washington's army.

As early as he could do so young Parker attended school at Cortland academy and later got out of the Cortland Normal school all the equipment for life that it could give him. His parents were not able to send him to college or even to take care of him while he was trying to find a foothold. At sixteen he became a country school teacher.

Reluctantly he was obliged to give up the hope of a college training for his profession and to think of the old fashioned approach to the bar through the office of a preceptor. Having surrendered one cherished ambition, but not his chosen profession, he was admitted to the office of Schoonmaker & Hardenbergh of Kingston as a student of law. Working his way, he was at last enabled to enter the law school at Albany, gravitating between the office of his preceptors at Kingston and the law school, according to season and necessity. In 1872 he was graduated, and soon after the sign of Parker & Kenyon was hung out at Kingston.

He speedily demonstrated a decided ability for political management. From the start he was a Democrat.

In 1877, when he was twenty-five, the Democrats of Ulster county nominated him for surrogate of the county. He was elected for a six year term and in 1883 was re-elected.

In 1884 he was a delegate to the convention at Chicago that nominated Grover Cleveland for president, and he helped to pull the candidate through in the hotly contested campaign of that year. Cleveland was elected, and in January he turned over to Lieutenant Governor Hill the uncompleted term of office he was obliged to surrender to become president.

Governor Hill was nominated in the fall. The Democratic party was worn out with the efforts it had made in the preceding year, its money was exhausted, and its stock of patience was growing small.

Hill was urged to select this or that man to take charge of his interests in the conduct of the campaign. He, too, had come to know Parker very well, and he had a clear conviction of his superior fitness for the difficult position to be occupied. He sent to Kingston for Parker, who not only overcame the apathy of his party and disregarded the disadvantage of an empty cash box, but overcame all the advantages supposed to be enjoyed by the Republicans and saw his candidate victorious by 11,000 plurality in the state in which Cleveland had with difficulty secured about 1,200 the year before.

During the campaign Supreme Court Justice Theodore R. Westbrook died. Governor Hill was urged to fill the vacancy at once. "After the election," was his answer to all pressure. When the election was over he announced the appointment of Alton B. Parker to the judgeship.

In June, 1889, was created the second division of the court of appeals to accelerate the work of the highest court. Judge Parker was designated by Governor Hill to sit with this new court. He was only thirty-seven years of age, the youngest of all judges of the court of appeals. He sat in this court until 1893, when, upon its dissolution, he was appointed by Governor Flower, urged thereto by many judges, to be a member of the general term of the supreme court of the first district. Here he remained until the creation of the appellate division of the supreme court, when he resumed the trial terms in his own district. In 1897 he was nominated to be chief justice of the court of appeals and was elected by a plurality of 60,889.

That not every one, however, regards Judge Parker as a Delphic oracle is shown by the following anecdote:

A very able New York attorney who was quite deaf and very sensitive was arguing a case before the New York court of appeals. He dwelt at length upon a fundamental law principle. Finally Judge Parker interrupted. "It would seem, Brother," that you infer that this court is not well versed in this elementary law point."

Now, the attorney didn't catch what was said, but he made it a rule to agree always with what the court said; so, smiling and bowing, he said:

"Precisely, your honor; precisely. You have stated the proposition correctly."

The court laughed, Judge Parker smiled, and the lawyer continued his argument.

Nonconspicuous in the public eye has been Mrs. Mary D. Parker, the wife of Judge Parker. This is because she has led an unusually quiet life.

Mrs. Parker was born at Accord, in the township of Rochester, in Ulster county, and is a daughter of the late Moses I. Schoonmaker. Her early life was passed upon the farm upon which she was born. Her girlhood was passed at Accord, and was much the same as that of most American girls reared in the country. She continued to reside at Accord until her marriage to Judge Parker.

Since then Mrs. Parker has spent her time between Albany and Esopus, with frequent visits to Kingston, the home of her daughter, Bertha Parker Hall, wife of the rector of the Mission Church of the Holy Cross.

The Schoonmakers, from whom she is descended, were among the early Dutch settlers of New York state, and the good Dutch virtues would look with pride upon so worthy a descendant and daughter.

NO ABATEMENT

In the Interest Taken in Affairs of the Savings Bank and Homestead Building Association—An Interview With Receiver Taafel.

The interest that has been taken in every development in the Newark Savings Bank case, does not abate but on the contrary seems to increase from day to day.

The affairs of the institution seem to be in such shape that no one will vouchsafe any estimate of the shortages that exist and every query that is put to Receiver W. C. Taafel is met with the same response: "We are doing all in our power to straighten out the affairs of the bank, and until we prosecute our investigation to the end there is absolutely nothing to give to the public."

Mr. Taafel stated on Tuesday morning that he was making every endeavor to locate the losses and said that if it is found that ex-Cashier Lingafelter was involved in any criminality, steps would be taken to make him answer.

"As far as we can see now the losses are in the nature of bad loans on which there can be no realization. It is a hard matter to say that Mr. Lingafelter is criminally responsible for these losses how much soever his business judgment may have been faulty."

The question which has been asked repeatedly is, "What became of the money which was put in the bank up until 3 o'clock Friday, the day before it closed? It is known that there was no money found there on Saturday morning when the bank announced a receivership. Was there a raid made on the resources by some one?" It is questions like these which Mr. Taafel is unable to answer, and he does not feel justified in taking a step in prosecuting anyone until more definite information is secured.

Mr. Taafel said that a report has gained circulation that $2,500, the gift of Andrew Carnegie to St. Paul's Lutheran church to assist in purchasing a new organ, had been deposited in the savings bank, and that a loss would be sustained on it. Mr. Taafel said that Mr. Carnegie's gift had not been received as yet, and that instead of it amounting to $2,500 it would only amount to $1,250. He said that all the money deposited in the bank to the credit of the organ fund in the bank was $235.

A story was told today that the savings bank has been paying 6 per cent dividends for years on the capital stock of $75,000, whereas only half that amount of stock was paid into the bank. This would make a 12 per cent dividend on the money invested. Receiver Taafel said Tuesday that dividends were paid on $57,500 only and not on $75,000.

One of the well-known financiers of the city said Tuesday that in his opinion a large amount of the deficiency in the Homestead Building association is due to a faulty system of conducting the business. In other words, he thinks money was divided among depositors in the form of dividends that was never earned by the association.

FROM A DEPOSITOR.

(Communicated.)

As one of those interested in both the Savings Bank and The Homestead Building and Loan company, I would ask all others interested to wait and not be too quick to render judgment. I am sorry that some who have been befriended by these associations are among those who are the hardest on the management.

It is not manly to hit the under dog. Now, a few items as to how the concerns stand: The public has heard the worst side; let it listen now to the other.

The depositors may not lose much if any if they wait. Both the bank and the building company are earning money by interest on all their loans. The latter about $15,000 a year, and the bank has accrued interest of about $10,000; and its annual earning capacity is about the same amount, and from now on it will earn more for it is not paying interest on any deposits but on the contrary is earning interest on its losses.

These earnings would be more than sufficient to meet all expenses and have a surplus, and therefore the depositors should try to be patient. Impatience and abuse will do no good.

I would also suggest that as it is no particular advantage to withdraw mortgages from this association that they be left there until the business of the association be wound up. I think

ON THE RIFLE RANGE

Captain Winder the Crack Shot from Bloomdale Captured First Day's Honors—The Best Scores—Bronze Medals are Awarded to Winners.

Capt. Charles Winder, the former corporal in the Bloomdale company, Sixth regiment, O. N. G., but now state inspector of small arms, who won fame as a marksman at Sea Girt, led all others in the scores of Monday's target practice at the State Encampment Grounds. Captain Winder has a score of 45 out of 50 on a 200-yard range. The high scores for the target practice on the 200-yard practice, slow fire, follow: Captain Winder, division officer, 50; Private Ross Frye and Lieut. J. C. Seamon, 44; Capt. Wm. M. Scofield and James Ball, 43; T. W. Strickland and Sergeant Clas. E. Orr, of Co. G, Fourth reg., of Newark, 42; Lieut. Fred H. Reiber and Charles R. Ames, Co. E, Sixth reg., 42.

In the 500-yard practice shoot, slow fire, the famous Bloomdale marksmen came to the front and the three of that famous organization made high scores. The high scores follow: Capt. Winder, division officer, formerly of the Bloomdale company, 78; W. H. Richards, Bloomdale 47; J. E. Murray, Battery A, Cleveland, 46; H. E. Simon, Bloomdale, 46; Lieut. C. S. Benedict, Marietta, 45.

The following were awarded bronze medals for high scores Monday: C. B. Christolm, C-5; P. W. Steckrath, D-7; J. C. Seamon, C-5; H. O. Wynn, 1-2; F. H. Zurluh, A-6; J. E. Murray, Battery A, C. C. Mauderville, L-8; E. V. Hopkins, Battery A; Geo. King, K-5; Dr. W. H. Knuss, Medical department; Warren Smith; Charles Winder, division officer; Henry Bebout, D-8; C. S. Benedict, 7; J. B. Libensparger, L-4; W. B. Sprinkle, F-3.

The two hundred and the five hundred yard contests were not completed until about 10 o'clock Monday morning. The contests Tuesday are on the three-hundred and six-hundred yard ranges.

Almost three hundred officers and men are participating in the event and it is confidently expected that the contests will result in much good. There are 211 enlisted men on the grounds and 60 officers. The men have been divided into three provisional companies and officers have been selected for them as follows:

First provisional company—Frank L. Cyler, Fourth Regiment, captain, Roy H. Brown, Fourth regiment, first lieutenant; John C. Jolka, Fourth regiment, second lieutenant. Second provisional company—H. J. Turney, Fifth regiment, first lieutenant; James W. Smith, Second regiment, second lieutenant. Third provisional company—A. W. Hale, First regiment, first lieutenant; Ben South, First regiment, second lieutenant.

The building committee was authorized to make a fill at the Riverside school at 20 cents per cubic yard. A contract was entered into with the Newark Natural Gas company to furnish gas during the coming winter at 11 cents per thousand cubic feet. Last year the price was 15 cents with a proviso that the board should not pay more than $1,000. The meter measurement showed that $2,000 worth of gas had been burned. The company refused to make a contract with this provision at a rate of one cent lower.

Following is the routine for the day: the routine to continue throughout the week: Reveille, 5 a. m.; fatigue, 5:30 a. m.; mess, 6 a. m.; sick call, 6:30 a. m.; rifle competition, 7 a. m.; mess, 12 m.; rifle competition, 1 p. m.; mess, 7 p. m.; retreat, 8:00 a. m.; tattoo, 9:30 p. m.; taps, 10 p. m.

Although the rain is frightfully hot the men are put in about eleven hours a day shooting. The rifle competitions are under the direction of the Ohio State Rifle Association. Brig. Gen. J. C. Speaks, in command and Major Mac Lee Wilson is the acting adjutant. Adjutant General Critchfield was on the grounds Sunday but returned to Columbus Monday morning on business returning to the encampment grounds Tuesday morning.

the above statement is due to the management.

Yours respectfully,
A DEPOSITOR IN BOTH CONCERNS.

Newark, O., July 19, 1904.

Upon good authority to-day the following story is told. About two days before the Savings Bank failed a Newark man mortgaged a piece of property for $2,300 with the intention of using the money to buy another piece of real estate. His deal was not quite ready to be consummated however and the man is said to have been persuaded to leave his money in the bank which closed its doors within 18 hours.

CONTRACTS TO BURN NATURAL GAS THIS WINTER.

Company Makes a Rate of Fourteen Cents Per Thousand Feet—Meeting of the Board.

The Board of Education met Monday evening with President Keller in the chair, and members Haight, Keckley, Fulton, Christian, Munch and Efinger present.

Bills to the amount of $92.36 were allowed.

A communication was read from Milton E. Wise, teacher in the high school, notifying the board that he had been offered a position as teacher in the Central High school in Philadelphia, and that he would accept the same.

Thirty poplar and soft maple trees were ordered for the Riverside and Indiana street school building, the price being 70 cents per tree, the company to ship them and pay all costs of planting.

The building committee was authorized to make a fill at the Riverside school at 20 cents per cubic yard.

A contract was entered into with the Newark Natural Gas company to furnish gas during the coming winter at 11 cents per thousand cubic feet. Last year the price was 15 cents with a proviso that the board should not pay more than $1,000. The meter measurement showed that $2,000 worth of gas had been burned. The company refused to make a contract with this provision at a rate of one cent lower.

Three Per Cent Dividend.

At the regular meeting of the directors of the Citizens Building Association held Wednesday night, a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent was declared and ordered placed to the credit of each share of stock. This meant that each customer of the Citizens will be paid in cash or have his loan stock credited with a 3 per cent dividend no more nor no less. The condition of the Citizens is very prosperous, and homebuilders should investigate its liberal plans. 14d-7

Henry Gassaway Davis

Career of the Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate—He Was Born on a Farm and Was the First Railroad Brakeman in America—A Man of Millions

HENRY GASSAWAY DAVIS, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, is a man with more than an ordinary business and political career. In West Virginia and nearby states he long has been regarded as a financial giant, and his political life has been characterized by conservatism and sagacity.

His nomination at St. Louis confers upon him the peculiar distinction of being the oldest candidate ever selected for the office. Mr. Davis having been born in Woodstock, Md., on Nov. 16, 1823. His father was Caleb Davis, a successful Baltimore merchant, who died a few years after the son's birth, and his mother was a Miss Louise Brown, whose sister was the mother of Senator Gorman of Maryland.

Like Judge Parker, Mr. Davis spent his early days on a farm. He received his education in a village school and at the age of twenty entered the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad as a brakeman. This was the first railroad built in America, and Mr. Davis has the distinction of having been the first brakeman on any rail-ever, his practical skill, courage and energy overcame all difficulties. Piedmont was the center of the Cumberland bituminous coal region. The present great coal fields of that part of the country were then undeveloped, and Davis perceived that that section was one of immense industrial promise. The firm of Davis & Bros. engaged in the shipping of coal and lumber for the producers, and its business grew rapidly.

In 1860 Henry G. Davis organized the Piedmont Savings bank and became its president. This bank was supplanted by the National Bank of Piedmont, of which Mr. Davis is also the guiding spirit. He and his brothers, whose possessions were originally insignificant, have since been able to count their capital by millions, while their landed estate at one time approximated 100,000 acres.

Before the war Mr. Davis was a Whig, while after its close he allied himself with the conservative wing of the Democratic party.

He made his entry into politics in 1865, when he was elected to the West eighty-first year, is as spry as a man of sixty, and a good deal sprier than many. He was a delegate to the recent national convention and a member of the committee on resolutions. He was chosen as a member of the subcommittee that had charge of the platform, and he stayed up all night during the deliberations of that committee at the Southern hotel. When he went to the Jefferson hotel at noon the next day he did not appear fatigued, and he told his friends he could stand another twenty-four hours of it as well as not.

He favored the insertion of a gold plank in the platform. When his name was being considered by the national convention there was some question as to whether he supported Bryan in 1896 and 1900. Chairman Jones of the Democratic national committee put it at rest by saying that in 1896 Senator Davis presided at a Bryan meeting in West Virginia and voted for Bryan. At that time Senator Davis was engaged in building a railroad and had a large obligation at a bank which he desired to renew. When he went to the bank the president said:

"I understand you presided at a Bryan meeting last night."

"Yes," said Davis. "What of it?"

"Well," said the bank president. "Don't you know that the theories of Bryan are opposed to all the financial institutions in this country? I do not see how you can come to this bank or any other for favors, holding the views that you do."

"Do you mean to say," asked Davis, "that the fact that I remain loyal to the Democratic party makes any difference with my credit?"

"Not at all," said the bank president. "But we are not inclined to do any favors for such people."

"This is no favor to me," said Davis. "I am simply carrying this obligation as a business transaction, and if you don't want to renew it I'll pay it now and withdraw my patronage from the bank."

The bank president grew alarmed at this, because Senator Davis is heavily interested in financial operations in West Virginia, and he begged Davis to reconsider. He paid the obligation in cash that afternoon and cut that bank off his list of business connections.

Senator Davis is many times a millionaire. He has been an enthusiastic Gorman man ever since the canvass for the Democratic nominee in 1904 began. At one time he said he would spend a million dollars to secure the nomination of Gorman, and it was no mere idle boast, because he had the money and would spend it.

Personally, Senator Davis is an affable, genial man, democratic and modest. He does not look his years, and to the casual observer he would appear to be not more than sixty-five. He is more than six feet tall, erect and straight as in the days of his youth. His shoulders are square. He is well muscled. He has a springy heel and toe walk. There is not the slightest evidence of any loss of mental or bodily vigor.

His face features are regular and bold. His nose is aquiline. His eyes are gray and sharply penetrating, but withal kindly in expression and set wide apart. His face is not deeply furrowed, though fine wrinkles appear about the eyes. His beard of snowy road in the United States. He was soon advanced to the position of conductor and was then the only railroad conductor in the country. An amusing story illustrative of the grip of early associations on a retentive nature used to be told of him in Washington. It is said that well toward morning of a wearisome all night session of the senate Senator Davis was asleep, his head resting upon his desk. Senator Edmunds had provoked Judge Thurman to a speech, and by introduction the judge unfurled his red bandanna and blew a blast of more than usual power. Mr. Davis may have been dreaming of his old railroad days. At any rate, he sprang to his feet in a half dazed condition and, catching sight of the red flag—the old signal of danger—and seeming to imagine that he had heard a shriek of alarm from the open throttle of a locomotive calling for "Down brakes!" seized his desk and with the brakeman's quick twist wrenched it from the floor.

It was while serving as a conductor that Mr. Davis met and formed the acquaintance of Henry Clay, who was a passenger upon Mr. Davis' train while going from his Kentucky home to the capital and returning. Clay would board the train in Baltimore and leave it at its western terminus and make the journey over the mountains into Kentucky in the old fashioned stagecoach. Mr. Davis got his first

Until recently Mr. Davis was president of the West Virginia, Central and Pittsburgh railroad, which he projected, and also of the Piedmont and Cumberland railroad. He was one of the delegates to the pan-American congress and was a member of the United States intercontinental railway commission. Today he is known as one of West Virginia's "Big Four," and had the boom of Senator Gorman materialized he was to have managed it.

In 1833 he married Miss Kate A. Bantz, a daughter of Judge Gideon Bantz of Frederick, Md. He has two sons, John T. Davis and Henry G. Davis, Jr., and three daughters, Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins, Mrs. R. M. G. Brown, wife of Lieutenant Commander Brown, U. S. N., and Mrs. Arthur Lee. Mr. Davis' wife died two years ago. He has a beautiful villa at Deer Park, Md., where he passes the summer months, but his home as a voter is at Elkins, W. Va., where his residence adjoins that of United States Senator Stephen B. Elkins, his son-in-law. The people of Elkins are very fond of ex-Senator Davis, who has done very much for that town. He built the Davis Memorial hospital at a cost of nearly $100,000 in memory of his son, who was drowned while cruising on the African coast. With Senator Elkins he has founded the Davis and Elkins college, a Presbyterian institution at Elkins that soon will be dedicated. He was also instrumental in the erection of the Davis Memorial Presbyterian church at Elkins.

HENRY GASSAWAY DAVIS.

THE CANDIDATE IN BRIEF.

Henry G. Davis is eighty years old. Left an orphan at an early age, began his career as superintendent of a plantation. Became brakeman on the Baltimore and Ohio at twenty and later was promoted to conductor. At thirty he was supervisor of trains. Invested in coal lands and laid foundation of immense fortune. Founded the West Virginia towns of Davis and Elkins. Was a Unionist during the war. Elected to lower branch of West Virginia legislature as Union-Conservative 1865 and to the senate two years later. Elected United States senator in 1871 and served until 1883. Has been delegate to six national conventions.

taste for politics with Henry Clay in his conversations with that great statesman during these trips over the Baltimore and Ohio, and he cast his first ballot for Clay for president.

Later he became station agent at Piedmont. Having served with the railroad company for fourteen years, he turned his attention to commercial pursuits and established the firm of Davis & Bros. at Piedmont.

Socially he always was diffident, even backward at times, but when called upon he never failed to declare his convictions. In his railroad life, howwhiteness is a feature that does more to denote advanced age than any other.

The whole bearing of the man denotes an alert, vigorous interest in life and the matters that appeal to him for action.

His daughter, Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins, is one of Washington's noted entertainers, and her gracious womanliness has won her many friends.

Ex-Senator Davis is but one of many vigorous old men who are still active in public life. Here is a list of some of the prominent old men who are still active and hale like Mr. Davis:

Ex-Speaker Galusha Grow of Pennsylvania, 80; ex-Vice President Levi P. Morton, 80; Senator John T. Morgan of Alabama, 80; Senator George F. Hoar of Massachusetts, 77; ex-Secretary Boutwell, 88; Senator Edmund W. Pettus of Alabama, 83; Senator William F. Frye of Maine, 72.

Russell Sage, capitalist, at the age of eighty-seven is still active in Wall street, and Charles Haynes Haswell works every day as civil, marine and mechanical engineer in New York, although he is in his ninety-sixth year.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Otis Skinner is fishing in the Maine woods.

Miss Julia Marlowe is resting at her summer place, Highmount, in the Catskills.

Dora Olsen of the "Woodland" company is an expert yachtswoman. She sails a knockabout almost every afternoon in Boston harbor.

"The Wizard of Oz" will make an extended tour of this country next season. Every city of importance on the Pacific coast will also be visited.

Grace King of the "Woodland" company is a daughter of Allan King of Jacksonville, Fla., who was one of the most famous musicians of the south.

Fred Lennox has retired from the cast of "The Maid and the Mummy" and has been succeeded in the role of the bankrupt curio dealer by Richard Carroll.

Blanche Morrison of the "Bostons" has made one of her great successes this season wherever she has played Maid Marian in "Robin Hood." She took up the part of Dolores in "The Serenade" at less than twenty-four hours' notice.

Miss Marcia Van Dresser is in the mountains of the Tyrol, but keeping up her vocal studies even in that remote region. Though she will not sing in public for two years, she is a salaried member of Heinrich Conried's Metropolitan Opera House forces.

Wanted All There Was.

Pete Browning, the baseball player, was very popular in Louisville when a member of that club, and his admirers there bought a handsome watch for him. A committee went around to his house, and the spokesman made a speech and handed him the timepiece.

Browning listened attentively, though he was deaf as an adder and did not understand a word that was said. When the watch was offered to him he took it in his hand, turned it over and looked at it intently and then asked:

ATTRACTIVE FANCIES IN GOWNS AND FAVORITE GARMENTS.

A Princess Dress and a Picturesque Voile Frock—Frills and Ruchings, Flower and Ribbon Decoration—A Delightful Wash Gown.

A striking gown of the day is the princess in peau de sole, with pelerine collar and long hanging sleeves of embroidered linen, with a flounce to match on the skirt, shown in the first cut. And not less effective is the voile dress of the second illustration, with lace insertions and green velvet ribbons. Broad bands of tulle trim the large Marie Antoinette collar and the skirt.

The gown of the season is the white muslin enhanced with multitudinous narrow frills of valenciennes lace, frills whose rambblings give a curious suggestion of movement and life, so removed are they from any set and stiff scheme. Especially is this true in evening gowns, not only of frills, but of their kindred ruchings and bouillottes.

A pretty decoration seen on an evening confection of full skirt and Louis XVI. corsage was a trailing design of mousseline pompon roses and foliage applied at the head of a deep lace flouncing. Rosettes made of circular quillings of pink ribbon were the pretty garniture of another gown of muslin and lace. Strappings of white taffeta and tiny black jet buttons on the full skirt and corsage decorated an elegant toilet of black and white spotted mousseline.

One of the prettiest of washing gowns is built in white butcher's linen, trimmed with embroidered bands and insets of soft lace, with the color intensified by one of the kid belts now so much worn.

Damask linen of light weight enhanced with thick openwork embroidery strikes a decidedly original note in costume.

Sherbet or Water Ice.

A method of making a fine grained sherbet—one that will keep frozen as long as a cream—is as follows. Boil a quart of water and pint of sugar together for ten minutes, dissolve in it one teaspoonful of gelatin that has been soaked in cold water to cover and strain the mixture into the can of a freezer. When thoroughly cold add about a pint of fruit juice, less of lemon or currant juice. When the mixture is frozen add to a gallon freezer of sherbet a meringue made from the stiffly beaten white of an egg and one tablespoonful of hot sugar sirup or powdered sugar.

Mrs. Hughson, of Chicago, whose letter follows, is another woman in high position who owes her health to the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for several years with general weakness and bearing-down pains, caused by womb trouble. My appetite was fitful, and I would lie awake for hours, and could not sleep, until I seemed more weary in the morning than when I retired. After reading one of your advertisements I decided to try the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so glad I did. No one can describe the good it did me. I took three bottles faithfully, and besides building up my general health, it drove all disease and poison out of my body, and made me feel as spry and active as a young girl. Mrs. Pinkham's medicines are certainly all they are claimed to be."—Mrs. M. E. HUGHSON, 347 East Ohio St., Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Pinkham Tells How Ordinary Tasks Produce Displacements.

Apparently trifling incidents in women's daily life frequently produce displacements of the womb. A slip on the stairs, lifting during menstruation, standing at a counter, running a sewing machine, or attending to the most ordinary tasks may result in displacement, and a train of serious evils is started. The first indication of such trouble should be the signal for quick action. Don't let the condition become chronic through neglect or a mistaken idea that you can overcome it by exercise or leaving it alone.

More than a million women have regained health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for her advice, and a few timely words from her will show you the right thing to do. This advice costs you nothing, but it may mean life or happiness or both.

Mrs. Lelah Stowell, 177 Wellington St., Kingston, Ont., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—You are indeed a goddess to women, and if they all knew what you could do for them, there would be no need of their dragging out miserable lives in agony."

"I suffered for years with bearing-down pains, womb trouble, nervousness, and excruciating headache, but a few bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made life look new and promising to me. I am light and happy, and I do not know what sickness is, and I now enjoy the best of health."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can always be relied upon to restore health to women who thus suffer. It is a sovereign cure for the worst forms of female complaints,—that bearing-down feeling, weak back, falling and displacement of the womb, inflammation of the ovaries, and all troubles of the uterus or womb. It dissolves and expels tumors from the uterus in the early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors. It subdues excitability, nervous prostration, and tones up the entire female system. Its record of cures is the greatest in the world, and should be relied upon with confidence.

The Only Danger.

A lady was very solicitous about her health. Every trifling matter made her uneasy and the doctor was called immediately. The doctor was a skillful man and consequently had a large practice. It was very disagreeable to him to be so often called away from his other cases for nothing, and he resolved to take an opportunity of letting the lady see this. One day the lady observed a red spot on her hand and at once sent for the doctor. He came, looked at her hand and said:

"You did well to send for me early."

The lady looked alarmed and asked:

"Is it dangerous, then?"

"Certainly not," replied the doctor. "Tomorrow the spot would have disappeared, and I should have lost my fee for this visit."

Major Jones was criticised in a curious manner for his failure in his last gubernatorial campaign, says the Indianapolis Saturday Evening Post.

Mr. Jones was a musician of considerable talent, besides a big manufacturer and a popular politician. When he was running for the mayoralty of Toledo he wrote in a song and sang them himself in Golden Rule hall an institution of his own, where musicals are given free to the benefit of workmen and their families.

At a meeting in that same hall a laborer wrote a song about "Mr. Mayor, in my opinion you lost this election because you didn't write songs and sing them as you did the last time you ran for office."

FINE BILL

IS OFFERED AT IDLEWILDE PARK THIS WEEK.

Four of the Five Acts are All "Headliners"—It's a Show You Ought to See.

The person who fails to see this week's bill at Idlewilde Park Casino misses a good thing.

The fact is, the bill this week is by all odds the best seen this year at the park and none here last year can compare with it. There is but a single number on the program that is not absolutely first-class and it is above the average.

This is pretty strong endorsement of what Manager Harris has to offer the patrons of the casino this week, but it is not too strong as those who visited the summer theater Sunday and Monday nights will admit.

Three of the acts offered were "packed in New York City and opened in Newark", two are exceptionally fine; any one of the four best numbers is worth more than the price of admission.

The bill opens with Anna Burt, a dancing wire equilibrist, dainty and graceful. Miss Burt introduces some novel and original tricks on the tight wire.

Dan Tourjee, of minstrel fame, hands out a joke or two and gives two samples of singing that is good.

The sketch of Mr. Murphy and Eloise Willard deserves a whole notice in itself. Quick action and by play are mixed with some delightful singing by Miss Willard and the whole number is exceedingly well presented. Mr. Murphy is a comedian bordering on the grotesque but his methods though unique and legitimate and Miss Willard, handsome and handsomely gowned, possesses a sweet velvety soprano voice that one could listen to all evening.

The Doretha Sisters, singers and dancers, afford a very delightful portion of this splendid bill. They are clever and capable and combine catchy vocalizations with an exhibition of gymnastic dexterity.

Many think the best number is the last one, and perhaps it is. The Four:

J. A. MURPHY.

American Trumpeters are all musicians, every inch of them. They play just the kind of music one likes and are good enough to play again when the audience requests it. These people use all sorts of instruments but all music comes out of every instrument they employ.

The person who attends this week's bill and isn't satisfied that he has his money's worth must have a poor digestion.

OBITUARY

MRS. EMILY ROADS.

Johnstown, O., July 19.—Mrs. Emily Roads, who was called from her daughter's home in Kansas last May by the fatal illness of her husband, Michael Roads near Hebron, died Monday night at 10:06 o'clock at the residence of Miss Rhoda Dennis, where she had been ill only a few days with pneumonia.

Besides one son, Dr. Wm. M. Roads of San Diego, Cal., and one daughter, Mrs. Emma Morrison of Centralia, Kas., Mrs. Roads leaves one brother, Mr. D. C. Winegarner of Newark, and one sister, Mrs. Brooke of Salem, Neb. The remains will be taken to Mr. Geiger's home near Hebron Thursday and held there until Dr. Roads and Mrs. Morrison arrive from the West.

DANIEL R. COOK.

Daniel Rolan Cook aged 10 years, died at the home of his parents, 137 West Railroad street about midnight on Monday night, after an illness of six days with pneumonia. The funeral which was private, and which excluded all children took place Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. There is another case of diphtheria in the family.

MRS. ALVA SWISHER.

The funeral of Mrs. Alva Swisher, who died at her home in Franklin township on Monday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock, will take place from the Lutheran church in that township on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the services being conducted by the Rev. E. L. Spauld, and the interment will be made in the adjoining cemetery.

FINISH

OF THE CHICAGO JUNCTION GAME WAS SENSATIONAL.

Newark Lost an Eleven-Inning Contest By Score of Three to Two Monday Afternoon.

Chicago Junction, O., July 19.—In a sensational finish yesterday afternoon Chicago Junction won the first in a series of 3 games to be played on the home grounds with the Newark team, requiring 11 innings to settle the contest. With men on first and second, two men out, Champlin made a two-base hit and brought in the winning run. The finish was one of the most exciting ever witnessed here. Score: Chicago Junction 9 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—3 Newark 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 0—2 Batteries: McHaffey and Carney; Stone and Doyle.

Stone pitched good ball but was wild at times. Big Bill Ferrall started on first. He hit one over the fence but was only given two bases on it. His catch with one hand of a high throw in the seventh was the special feature. In the seventh inning one of the directors went to the Newark captain and asked to let Chicago Junction win the game so some think Newark "threw" the game. The Newark boys say they will win today.

SEEMS FOOLISH

It seems a bit foolish, doesn't it, to reduce prices now, when the summer has just gotten into full swing? You can't be thinking of cool weather stuffs for two months yet. But a store that is to go ahead must think ahead. We are already buying fall goods, in fact the greater part has been bought. But our summer stock is between us and fall, and it will have to go, and so soon. So we are very frank to say that we are not reducing prices because we want to, but simply because it is time to do it. But you, with plenty of wearing time for these fine summer things can well afford to take the savings we offer during this sale. The White Fair Sale holds sway all over the store, everything in summer goods at greatly reduced prices. The Powers-Miller Company.

CITY COUNCILMEN

Listen to Addresses by Lawyers on the Merits and Demerits of the Traction Companies—A Two Hour Session Held on a Hot July Evening.

The members of the city council sat sweltering in the council chamber Monday evening for over two hours, the greater part of the time being spent in listening to addresses from Attorney J. R. Fitzgibbon and Attorney J. A. Flory regarding the merits and demerits of the Newark & Granville Street Railway company and the Columbus, Buckeye Lake & Newark Traction company. The discussion arose over the passage of the ordinance giving the C. B. L. & N. T. Co. a franchise over Pine street and West Main street.

The city council was called to order Monday evening by President Rosell. Members Hunter, Miller, Jones, Conrad, Baker and Carille answered to the roll call. The street committee submitted a report recommending that the Pennsylvania and E. & O. companies be enjoined from raising their tracks at the Second and Third street crossings. The committee also recommended that there be appropriated from the contingent fund $620 for improvements on the South Fourth street sewer. The report was received and filed.

The appropriation ordinance which was passed at the last meeting of the council was returned by Mayor Crilly who approved the ordinance with the exception of Sec. 9 which he vetoed. The section vetoed appropriates money for the city board of elections and the mayor held that the law as he understands it does not provide for the city's paying expenses of this kind but that the election expense account must come out of the fund of the county board of elections. The matter was referred to the committee on law.

A petition from 106 property owners along West Main street protesting against the passage of the ordinance changing the route of the Columbus, Buckeye Lake & Newark Traction company in Newark and granting a right-of-way on West Main street was read. The petition calls attention to the fact that the consent of a majority of the property owners on the street had not been obtained, because a notice of the application for the franchise had not been published, because the service would not accommodate the people and because the street is too narrow, because the company has another right-of-way, because the company is not required to give transfers or to sell six tickets for 2 cents and because the company will not carry people from the west to the east part of Newark for one fare. The petition also contains the statement that the applicant company and other companies in the city are under the same management and preserve separate organizations for the sole purpose of compelling citizens of Newark to pay exorbitant passenger and freight rates. The petition was received and filed.

J. R. Fitzgibbon, attorney for the Columbus, Buckeye Lake & Newark Traction company addressed council. He stated that the franchise asked practically no change. For a year past the interurban cars have been running on West Main street and this is all the ordinance calls for.

J. A. Flory representing the property owners along West Main street, who signed the remonstrance, addressed council relative to the matter. He asked that the matter be referred to a committee for investigation.

A motion to refer the matter to the committee on public service was lost. A motion to pass the ordinance was lost. Judge Hunter moved to renew the motion to refer and the motion prevailed.

Ordinances.

Mr. Mr. Moser—Accepting the plat of G. L. Larkin and Lucinda Roland changing the plat of White's first addition. The ordinance was read for the third time but action was deferred until the next meeting.

By Mr. Jones—To change the route of the Columbus, Buckeye Lake & Newark Traction company in the city, from Union street to Pine street and thence on West Main street. The ordinance was given its third reading.

By Mr. Jones—Determining to proceed with the improvement of Locust street from Fifth to Twelfth street by paving. Passed under suspension of the rules.

By Mr. Carille—To issue bonds to the amount of $7,350 in anticipation of the collection of special assessments for the paving of Granville street from Eddy street to Eleventh. Passed under suspension of the rules.

By Mr. Carille—To issue bonds to the amount of $5,050 in anticipation of the collection of special assessments for the Woods avenue paving. Referred to the finance committee.

By Mr. Moser—Making it a misdemeanor to sprinkle the streets so as to make them muddy. A person so muddying the streets is liable to a fine of from $1 to $300. Referred to the committee on county relations.

By Mr. Carille—An ordinance amending an ordinance passed in 1890, granting the railway company's permission to erect a gate at the Union street crossing so that the P. C. C. & St. L. Ry. and the B. & O. Ry. companies are required to keep a day watchman and a night watchman at the crossing to operate the gates. First reading.

By Mr. Miller—Appropriating $50 to purchase a right-of-way for sewer from the corner of Fourth and Pataskala streets through the property of Mrs. Vogel. Passed under suspension of the rules.

By Mr. Miller—Appropriating $498 for the construction of a sewer at the corner of Fourth and Pataskala streets. Passed under suspension of the rules.

By Mr. Miller—Appropriating $75 for South Fourth street sewer improvements. Passed under suspension of the rules.

Resolutions.

By Mr. Baker—To give the city solicitor authority to commence injunction proceeding against the P. C. C. & St. L. and B. & O. Ry. company's to prevent their raising the tracks at the Second and Third street crossings. Adopted.

By Mr. Miller—That a committee be appointed by the president of the council to investigate the condition of the pipes and plant of the Newark Water Works Co. Said committee to have authority to employ Mr. L. E. Chapin or some other competent hydraulic engineer to assist in such examination and make report of such investigation to the council. Adopted.

By Mr. Baker—Accepting the deed of J. B. Jones and Ida M. Jones, and Fred C. Evans conveying real estate to the city of Newark. Adopted.

BUGGY DEMOLISHED

Mrs. Samuel Priest of Clay Lick Had a Narrow Escape from Death Tuesday Morning When Train Struck Her Buggy Near Clay Lick.

Mrs. Amanda Priest, wife of Samuel Priest, of Clay Lick, had a narrow escape from a horrible death Tuesday morning. She had started to drive to Newark, and was in the act of crossing the railroad tracks near Clay Lick when the fast west-bound C. N. & Z. interurban car struck the buggy, completely demolishing it and throwing her to a considerable distance. She was rendered unconscious and persons who witnessed the accident thought

THE GREATEST EPOCH OF MARRIAGE

The first is the most crucial time. If for the first time the greatest event in your married life is about to occur, how expectant, how wrapt up in it you find yourselves.

You try to overlook, but in vain, that element of uncertainty and danger that you have been led to expect from the experience of those mothers and fathers who have struggled through this ordeal in ignorance of what it is, and what it does.

If at this time every expectant man and wife might know of the greatest of boons, devised for the express purpose of alleviating and dispelling the suffering and consequent danger of child-birth, how quickly would all doubt and worry be dissipated.

Mother's Friend is an invaluable liniment for external massage, through whose potent agency countless mothers have been enabled to experience the joy of parturition for the first time without danger to themselves or their off-spring.

The Expectant

Mother

Are you a mother, or do you expect to be?

The greatest heritage of life is rich, red, blood—the life-giving, fluid—pure and strong.

Your child—what does it mean? It means the fulfillment of your life. Do you want it to be a failure? No? Then give it blood! The blood that strengthens, sustains and makes a perfect life possible. Puny children should not be so. You, as a mother may give them life in its fullness of health, strength and happiness. Build up your own system. Make possible an inheritance of health. Isn't it worth while?

Your child! In benefiting your own condition you benefit it. Suppose you give the child real life. CLARO is guaranteed to make rich, red blood.
